To Whom It May Concern,

It was our distinct pleasure to provide Talia J. Medina with an internship at The Media Line news agency from February through July, 2015. We were immediately struck by Talia's eagerness to learn and her willingness to adapt to a new and heretofore unknown regimen in a foreign setting alien to her educational and personal experiences. She quickly assimilated into the agency's routine and became a valued member of The Media Line staff.

Talia impressed us with her understanding of The Media Line's stringent adherence to the tenets of classical journalism and her eager embrace of the agency's guidelines. Above all, Talia clearly grew in her role from the day she arrived, demonstrating initiative and an innate grasp of the routine and the environment in which she was working: the Middle East. We were quickly able to send Talia on assignments with confidence that she would return with her goals fulfilled as well as could be expected from a more senior writer.

For us at The Media Line, Talia is an example of a successful internship: as she grew into her role and learned the skills of journalism, the agency, too, benefited by her presence. The TML staff truly enjoyed having Talia among them.

I am happy to commend Talia Medina for her work with The Media Line and recommend her without reservation to any agency considering her for a position.
